Data as at Sunday 5pm AEST. Change is from the previous trading day (excluding the SFE, which is the change during the night session). Source: Bloomberg.

Main Themes: US payrolls data was softer than expected but ongoing resilience with wages growth means the Fed may tighten again this month.

Share Markets: The Dow fell 0.6%, the S&P 500 eased 0.3% and the Nasdaq declined 0.1%.

Interest Rates: The US 2-year yield fell 3 basis points at the close, while the 10-year yield gained 3 basis points. Interest-rate markets are attaching a probability of 89% to a rate hike of 25 basis points when the Fed next meets on July 26. This probability is up from 85% in the previous session.

Foreign Exchange: The USD index was sold off after the release of the weaker-than-expected payrolls data, despite the wages growth data suggesting the Fed may need to continue tightening. The sell off in the USD spurred the AUD/USD higher, from a Friday night low of 0.6620 to the 0.6700 handle where the appreciation has stalled.

Commodities: Commodities moved higher in trade on Friday, including oil and gold.

Australia: No major data releases on Friday.

Eurozone: German industrial production slid 0.2% in May, missing expectations for a flat reading. In annual terms production growth slowed to 0.7% from 1.7% in April.

United States: Non-farm payrolls rose 209,000 in June against a consensus expectation for a rise of 230,000 and after 306,000 jobs were added in May.

It was the fewest jobs added in 2½ years. There were also downward revisions in the previous two months. The unemployment rate stayed steady at 3.6%.

Average hourly earnings growth was 0.4% in June, quicker than the 0.3% monthly pace in May and faster than the 0.3% rate expected by consensus. The annual rate of average hourly earnings remained steady at 4.4%.

Chicago Federal Reserve President Austan Goolsbee left the door open for more data to sway officials ahead of the next Fed meeting. Goolsbee said we're getting to a more sustainable pace, which is what we need to do for inflation.
